PACIFIC THOMAS CORPORATION,
Defendant.

Case No. 19-cv-04194-MMC
Bankruptcy Case No. 14-54232 MEH
DECISION AFFIRMING ORDER
DENYING APPELLANT'S SECOND MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM

13 Before the Court is appellant Randall Whitney's ("Whitney") appeal from the 14 Bankruptcy Court's order, filed July 3, 2019, denying Whitney's "Second Motion for Order 15 Granting Relief From the Automatic Stay of 11 USC § 362," whereby Whitney sought an 16 order lifting the automatic stay applicable to a state court action Whitney filed in 2014.
17 Having read and considered Whitney's Opening Brief, appellee Chapter 11 Trustee Kyle 18 Everett's ("Trustee") Responsive Brief, and the portions of the record cited by the parties, 19 the Court rules as follows.

20 In 2012, debtor Pacific Thomas Corporation ("Pacific") filed for bankruptcy 21 protection (see Doc. No. 1),<sup>1</sup> and, in 2013, the Trustee was appointed (see Doc. No.
22 220). On August 18, 2014, the Bankruptcy Court approved the Trustee's motion for 23 permission to sell real property upon which Pacific was operating a self-storage facility
24 (see Doc. No. 637; see also Doc. No. 691-3 ¶ 6), and on October 31, 2014, the sale 25 closed (see Doc. No. 691-3 ¶ 11). On February 18, 2016, the Bankruptcy Court

re: Pacific Thomas Corporation, Bankruptcy Case No. 14-54232

United States District Court
Northern District of California

1 approved the Trustee's motion for permission to sell other real property owned by Pacific
2 (see Doc. No. 799), and, in June 2016, the sale of that property closed (see Doc. No.
3 852).

4 On October 22, 2014, before the above-referenced properties had been sold,
5 Whitney filed in state court a "Petition for Alternative Writ of Administrative Mandamus"
6 ("Petition"). (See Doc. No. 691-4.) In the Petition, which remains pending in state court
7 but has been stayed,<sup>2</sup> Whitney seeks an order directing the City of Oakland to "set aside
8 and revoke the Certificates of Compliance" applicable to Pacific's real property. (See 9 Doc. No. 691-4 at 5).<sup>3</sup> In support of his standing to seek such relief, Whitney alleges he 10 is the "debtor representative of Pacific." (See Doc. No. 691-4 ¶¶ 3, 11.)

11 On June 30, 2016, after the above-referenced properties had been sold, Whitney 12 filed the first of two motions for relief from the automatic stay. (See Doc. No. 896.) On 13 August 4, 2016, the Bankruptcy Court denied that first motion (see Doc. No 904), which 14 order was affirmed by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel, see In re Pacific Thomas Corp., 15 2017 WL 3300600, at 5, and, on May 14, 2018, Whitney's subsequent appeal to the 16 Ninth Circuit was dismissed on the ground the appeal was moot, see In re Pacific 17 Thomas Corp. (Whitney v. Everett), 724 Fed. Appx. 587, 588 (9th Cir. 2018). Thereafter, 18 on June 6, 2019, Whitney filed his second motion for relief from the automatic stay (see 19 Doc. No.1092), which motion the Bankruptcy Court denied, both on the record at a 20 hearing conducted June 27, 2019 (see Doc. No. 1124), and in a written order filed July 3, 21 2019 (see Doc. No. 1106).

23       <sup>2</sup> According to Whitney, the state court found the automatic stay set forth in 11
24 U.S.C. § 362(a) applies to the Petition and, consequently, has declined to consider the 25 Petition in the absence of a Bankruptcy Court order lifting the automatic stay. (See Appellant's Opening Brief at 12; Appellee's Req. for Judicial Notice, filed April 2, 2021,
Ex. 8 at 5-6.)

26       <sup>3</sup> "A Certificate of Compliance is a document from [a government entity] stating 27 that the title deeds and parcel maps are in compliance with the Subdivision Map Act." In re Pacific Thomas Corp. (Whitney v. Everett), 2017 WL 3300600, at *1 (9th Cir. BAP 28 August 3, 2017).

1 By the instant appeal, Whitney argues the Bankruptcy Court erroneously denied 2 his second motion. As set forth below, the Court disagrees.

3 As noted above, the Ninth Circuit, in dismissing Whitney's appeal from the denial
4 of his first motion, found the appeal was moot. The basis for the Ninth Circuit's finding 5 was that "the trustee sold the underlying property" and Whitney had "failed to establish 6 his standing to prosecute on behalf of the debtor a state court challenge to the city's 7 Certificates of Compliance." See In re Pacific Thomas, 724 Fed. Appx. at 588. In 8 denying the second motion, the Bankruptcy Court cited the Ninth Circuit's decision, 9 thereby finding, in essence, the circumstances identified by the Ninth Circuit had not 10 changed.

11 Whitney argues the Bankruptcy Court erred by not accepting his argument, made 12 orally at the hearing on his second motion, that he has standing to pursue the Petition on 13 a ground other than that addressed by the Ninth Circuit. In particular, Whitney argued he 14 has standing to pursue the Petition as "a resident citizen [of the] City of Oakland" and "an 15 owner of adjacent property to the Debtor's estate" that was "impacted" by the Certificates 16 of Compliance. (See Transcript of Proceedings, June 27, 2019, at 3:6-21.) That 17 argument, however, was made by Whitney in support of his first motion, and the 18 Bankruptcy Appellate Panel found it unmeritorious, as follows:

19 While Whitney contended at the stay relief hearing that the erroneous 20 Certificates negatively impacted adjacent property he owns, he never 21 established before the bankruptcy court what that property is, whether he 22 actually owns it and what "impact" the Certificates have had regarding this 23 adjacent property. We agree with the bankruptcy court that, to the extent 24 Whitney has any rights separate and apart from Pacific to challenge the 25 Certificates, he is free to pursue them through his own action without the 26 need for relief from stay. However, it was simply not proper for Whitney to 27 pursue his individual rights, if any, through [the Petition], which was clearly 28 filed on behalf of the estate.

See In re Pacific Thomas, 2017 WL 3300600, at 4.

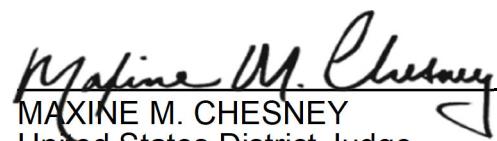

This Court finds the above-quoted reasoning persuasive. In particular, the Petition, as the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel noted, was filed by Whitney solely on behalf of Pacific, and Whitney does not therein seek relief in his individual capacity. Indeed,

1 consistent with the allegations made in the Petition, Whitney, in a 2017 filing in the Ninth
2 Circuit, acknowledged the "relief sought" in the Petition would "only benefit the debtor's
3 estate and not the appellant [Whitney]." See Appellant's Reply Brief at 12, filed January 4 13, 2017, In re Pacific Thomas Corp. (Whitney v. Everett), Appeal No. 16-15527. In 5 short, Whitney has failed to show the Bankruptcy Court erred in denying his second 6 motion.

7 Accordingly, the Bankruptcy Court's order denying Whitney's second motion is 8 hereby AFFIRMED.

9 IT IS SO ORDERED.
